

Mary Taylor's Bridal Editorial:

After a bride finalizes her venue, flowers and the major aspects of her big day, she must now consider how to best complete her look with a fabulous hairstyle. Whether you want to freshen your color, add highlights or make a very dramatic change. Make sure you have a very strong communicative relationship and trust level with your stylist. Never wait until the last moment to pick out a stylist and then change your look, a color or a cut, it can dramatically enhance your look or become a real nightmare. Here are some points to remember.

1. Always give your stylist plenty of time to work with you to explore the most flattering look, at least 1 year to 6 months is best.
2. Dimensional color and highlights always look beautiful in a wedding updo. Soft wavy curls are much more pleasing to the camera and your eye when colors are blended on subdued.
3. If you are a low maintenance bride consider doing a glaze, this will add a hint of color and terrific color shine without the drying and damaging effects of ammonia.
